The Mexican War facilitated westward expansion, bringing new lands into American possession, but it also vastly complicated American politics by making slavery a central issue. By 1840 all the land east of the Mississippi (excepting the territories of Florida and Wisconsin) had been organized into new states, but Americans remained hungry for land. By this time many had come to believe that America was destined to conquer and settle the entire North American continent, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean. As a result, tens of thousands of Americans migrated west in search of land and opportunity. Some were part of the migration along the Overland Trail to the Pacific Northwest, others came with the large Mormon migration to the Great Salt Lake.

The American defeat of Mexico dramatically increased the size of the nation. The United States incorporated a huge swath of new territory, stretching from Texas to California. The war was also deeply divisive, exacerbating the divisions between Democrats and Whigs and intensifying the conflict between abolitionists and pro-slavery forces.
Learning Objectives

After a careful examination of Chapter 11, students should be able to do the following:

1. Describe the conditions in New England and the South that contributed to western migration.
2. Explain the diverse regional and cultural influences that defined the culture of the Old Northwest during the early nineteenth century.
3. List the factors that contributed to the migration of planters into the Old Southwest.
4. Compare and contrast the socioeconomic development of the Old Northwest and the Old Southwest.
5. Describe the dilemma that faced the Native American farming peoples of the Plains, such as the Pawnees, during the nineteenth century.
6. Identify the factors that contributed to the development of the Sioux Indians into one of the most formidable Native American tribes of the nineteenth century.
7. Describe the lifestyle of American fur traders who lived in the Trans-Mississippi West during the mid-nineteenth century.
8. Outline the path of the Oregon Trail and describe the overlanders who used the trail to migrate westward. Describe the particular gender roles on the Oregon Trail.
9. Define the terms criollo and mestizo.
10. List the principal groups of Native Americans living in the Southwest and explain how their lives were impacted by the Spanish mission system.
11. Identify the Tejanos and describe the role they played in the Texas War for Independence.
12. Identify Stephen F. Austin and explain the role of American empresarios in Texas.
13. Explain the Anglo-Tejano alliance in the Texas War for Independence and why these groups were interested in seeking independence from Mexico.
14. Identify and explain the historical significance of the phrase “Remember the Alamo!” in the Texas War for Independence.
15. Explain the nature of the Mexican and American interests in California and the Southwest during the years prior to the Mexican War.
16. Describe the impact of the Santa Fe Trail on the settlement of New Mexico, and describe the impact of the Mormons on the settlement of Utah.

17. Explain the philosophy of Manifest Destiny. Explain the racial overtones in the philosophy and why it was closely associated with the Democratic Party.

18. Outline the events leading to the Mexican War. Explain the factors that contributed to the American victory and outline the provisions of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

Key Terms & Definitions:

rendezvous A festive annual gathering held in the Rocky Mountains in which Indians, mountain men, and traders would gather together to exchange pelts for a variety of goods. (318)

Manifest Destiny A term coined by editor and columnist John O’Sullivan to describe his belief in America’s divine right to expand westward. (320)
